

INCI FAQs

Q: What is an INCI name?

A: An INCI name is a systematic name coined by the International Nomenclature Committee to describe a cosmetic ingredient.

Q: Why do I need an INCI name?

A: INCI names are recognized around the world to identify cosmetic ingredients, and are referenced by regulation for product labeling in many countries.

Q: How do I apply for an INCI name?

A: File an electronic INCI application. Click here for details: INCI Application.

Q: Can the application be mailed or faxed?

A: No. The application is only available electronically.

Q: When should I apply for an INCI name?

A: It is advisable to apply at least 6 months before product launch.

Q: If an INCI name exists for my product, do I need to still apply?

A: Established INCI names are publicly available; the suitability of an existing INCI name to describe a raw material is a business decision that ultimately must be made by the finished product manufacturer.

Q: How do I find out if my product already has an INCI name?

A: INCI names are published in the International Cosmetic Ingredient Dictionary and Handbook. The Dictionary, and on-line versions of the Dictionary, is available from the Personal Care Products Council's e-bookstore: www.personalcarecouncil.org.

Q: How do I apply for an INCI name change?

A: There is no application for a name change. Requests may be sent via email. Click here for INCI Name Change Procedures.

Q: How much does it cost to get an INCI name?

A: The fee is $250.00 per application.

Q: How long does it take to get an INCI name?

The approximate time frame is 3-6 months. Click here for details: INCI Application – Name Assignment Timetable.

Q: Is there a fee for an INCI name change?

A: There is no fee to request a revision in an INCI name. Click here for more details: INCI Name Change Procedures.

Q: Can I submit more than one trade name for an INCI name?

A: There is no limit to the number of trade names that may be submitted. However, only one trade name may be submitted per application.

Q: What do I do if I don't have a trade name?

A: You may indicate N/A on the application if you do not have a trade name.

Q: What do I do if I don't want my trade name published?

A: There is a field on the application that asks for this information. Select "no" if you do not want to have your trade name or company name published.

Q: Can I save my application and return to it before submitting?

A: Yes. Select the "save" icon on the application. Remember your credentials and application number to re-enter the site.

Q: How do I change a trade name?

A: Trade name changes do not require an application or a fee. Trade name changes may be sent to inci@personalcarecouncil.org.

Q: How do I revise my address listing?

A: Changes to address listings may be sent to inci@personalcarecouncil.org.

Q: Can I make changes to my application?

A: Once the application has been submitted, it cannot be changed. If additional information is requested, the application is re-opened and you additional information can be provided in the Comments Box.

Q: What do I do if I have a technical problem with the INCI application site?

A: Contact Daniel Kim, kimd@personalcarecouncil.org or Patrick Cherestal, cherestalp@personalcarecouncil.org.

Q: How do I find out about my INCI name assignment?

A: After the application has been reviewed by the INC, an email notification will be sent to the address on the application via the application site.

Q: How do I request to have a CAS number added?

A: Send an email request and attach the CAS printout for verification.

Q: How do I request to have a function added to an INCI monograph?

A: Send an email request describing the additional ingredient function.

Q: How do I add a product category?

A: Reported product categories are derived from FDA's data base for the Voluntary Cosmetic Registration Program (VCRP) on an annual basis. If the ingredient is reported in a cosmetic product through the VCRP, it will automatically be updated in our data base. For further about the VCRP, go to the tab for Cosmetics at www.FDA.gov.

Q: What if I have two products with identical compositions, but different trade names, can they be listed on the same application?

A: No, only one trade name may be listed on an application. Only those trade names that go through the application process will be published in the Dictionary.

Q: If I have a product that is similar to another product that has an INCI name but is a different grade, will it be assigned the same INCI name?

A: In general, INCI names do not imply standards or grades of purity. In some cases, various grades or types of a material can have the same INCI name.

Q: If several different products are assigned the same INCI name, are they interchangeable?

A: Although INCI names are based on chemical composition, they can encompass products that have differing attributes, or physical characteristics, and for this reason interchangeability should not be assumed. As an example, the INCI name Polyethylene can be applied to ethylene polymers of varying molecular weights, and yet products named as polyethylene could have very different physical characteristics ranging from a soft wax to a semi-solid.

Q: What is the INCI number?

A: The INCI number refers to the monograph ID number that is associated with the INCI name. The monograph ID number is a place holder in the data base and is not intended to be included with the INCI name for product labeling. This number is not the same as a CAS number.

Q: How do I get a CAS number?

A: CAS numbers are provided by the Chemical Abstracts Service, <http://www.cas.org/content/chemical-substances/faqs>.

Q: If my product has an INCI name, does that mean it has been approved?

A: No. INCI names do not imply that an ingredient has been approved for use, or that an ingredient is safe. INCI names provide the systematic name for the identification of a cosmetic ingredient. For further information, see Regulatory Information.

Q: Where can I get a list of INCI names?

A: Click here for a pdf of INCI names and monograph ID numbers.

Q: My INCI name was recently revised, but in the archive area of the INCI application system the former INCI name still appears. Is this correct?

A: The archive area of the INCI application system does not get updated with changes to trade names or INCI name assignments. Once the name is assigned and the application is closed, changes to trade names or INCI names are made in the Council's internal data base for managing INCI data, and reflected in the online data bases, wINCI and the InfoBase.
